I was born on Sakhalin Island and lived there until I was 19. I graduated with honors from McNeese State University in Louisiana with degree in Psychology in 2005. In 2008, I graduated Magna Cum Laude from the Syracuse University College of Law. I have been licensed to practice law in Louisiana since 2009, and in Alaska, since 2013.

After law school, I worked at Louisiana Third Circuit Court of Appeal as the Chief Judge's elbow clerk. In 2014, I moved to Alaska to join my family for whom Alaska is home since 1993. In Alaska, I worked in private practice before joining Alaska Legal Services Corporation (ALSC) in 2019. I am the current supervising attorney for ALSC's Anchorage office. I am a mom of two tri-lingual teenagers, and it would be my great honor and privilege to serve as a judge.
